

Mike Derosa

Fly fishing, fly tying, and being on the water are Mike's passions. As a western New York native, he was blessed to have been raised in an area that offers world class fishing opportunities.

In guiding safety is the number one concern. After safety, comes teaching. Techniques, tactics, and information about the various fish and fisheries are the full responsibility of the fishing guide.

After 25 years of training, research and experience on the water, Mike can teach both one handed and two handed rod casting and techniques. He is fully equipped to dead- drift, fish indicators or swing based on river conditions.

Mike is a graduate of the Wulff School of Fly Fishing and Fly Casting Instructors Course.

Along with being the River Guide concierge for the Tailwater Lodge in Altmar, New York , he is the head guide for Corporate events at the Douglaston Salmon Run.

He has fished New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, Maine and regions in Canada.

His focus, as is the case for the entire Zero Limits Team, is that "A day with Zero Limits, is your day".

Mike practices catch and release and knows you will find that his time on the water along with the desire to serve you will help create the "fly fishing adventure of a lifetime".
